

Upland boosts church public housing plan

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

The Upland City Council gave a push Friday evening to a Presbyterian organization racing to meet federal loan requirements for building a $3.86 million facility providing subsidized housing for the elderly and handicapped.

Four council members approved the final parcel map sought by Southern California Presbyterian Homes for three acres on the north side of San Bernardino Road west of Grove Avenue and east of Upland Memorial Park.

Councilwoman Ina Petokas was absent.

Bill Arthur, the organization's superintendent of maintenance and grounds, explained earlier Friday that Presbyterian Homes needs to submit "closing papers" by Wednesday to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The five-minute council meeting was held so Presbyterian Homes would have a recorded map in time.

Arthur said HUD has given tentative approval to a loan for $3,858,164 to finance construction of 100 units to benefit low-income elderly and handicapped persons.

He said the one-bedroom apartments will rent for 25 percent of a resident's income, which may not exceed $8,000 annually.

Someone on a pension could end up paying $75 a month for the apartment with a stove and refrigerator, Arthur added. HUD makes up the difference between the rent paid for the subsidized housing and comparable one-bedroom apartments in the area.

Arthur said Presbyterian Homes has received some 500 applications for the 100 units.

Ground-breaking ceremonies will be held Oct. 8 for the three-story building and project completion is expected a year later, he said.

The subsidized housing is the first of three phases planned by the non-profit corporation for its 11-acre site.

The elderly will be able to buy into housing during the second phase, a 200-unit retirement home, Arthur said. He noted the third step of the development will be a 50-unit, limited nursing-care facility.

Supporters of the subsidized apartments for the elderly and handicapped filled council chambers last year during public hearings on the project.

The city council adopted a general plan amendment permitting higher density for the special facilities above what is allowed for regular multiple-family housing.

In other action Friday, the council authorized an agreement with the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) to shift the financial burden of watering San Bernardino Freeway landscaping from the city to the state.

Upland expects to save $25,000 annually, according to previous budget estimates. City Engineer Fred Blanchard explained that when the freeway was widened in the early 1970s, the state gave Upland the opportunity to help design the landscaping within the city.

For its part in determining the landscape features, Upland picked up the tab for water cost. Caltrans has already agreed to the new arrangement, which Upland has sought since Proposition 13 passed.

Parents claim children jeopardized by bus loss

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

After listening to parents' complaints, Upland school and city officials agreed Monday to explore alternatives for the canceled bus route from the Los Olivos housing project to Foothill Knolls Elementary School.

Parents said the 9/10-mile walk presents a safety hazard to their children, who must travel along a service road on the north side of Foothill Boulevard to reach the school.

Mike Matlock, assistant city manager for public services, said city and school district officials were to meet Wednesday with a representative of Omnitrans to discuss whether bus schedules in the city can be adjusted to accommodate the youths.

George Renworth, superintendent of the Upland Elementary School District, said class schedules would be modified at least temporarily to make it easier for parents to walk their children home.

Another meeting will be held at Los Olivos Oct. 5, when city and school will let parents know what progress has been made toward a solution.

Armando Navarro — coordinating organizer of the Congress for United Communities — called the meeting Monday attended by some 25 parents from the housing project.

He said the school district showed "gross negligence" and "gross insensitivity" by canceling the bus route, but afterward called the meeting a "good beginning."

Renworth denied that the school district was insensitive to problems presented by cancellation of bus service from Los Olivos to Foothill Knolls, 1245 Veterans Court.

He noted the district faced a $1 million drop in revenue under Proposition 13 and had contemplated eliminating all bus service this spring.

Under a revised bus schedule adopted Sept. 20, the district provides transportation to elementary school pupils living at least 1½ miles from school and junior high students 2½ miles or more from school.

Renworth said bus service districtwide has been cut from 1,800 students last school year to 900 this year for a savings of about $80,000.

A survey taken by the staff of Project HOY (Help Our Youth), an organization founded by Navarro, showed about 85 children from Los Olivos attend Foothill Knolls. Other children from surrounding homes take the same route to the school.

Parents at the meeting said they walk or drive their children to school since the bus service was dropped.

Rosa Lopez, whose daughter is in first grade, said, "I would never send her by herself — period."

Parents' concern centers on construction of a mobile home park on the north side of Foothill Boulevard covering 33.3 acres, a stretch of road with no sidewalk and traffic.

Debris is currently being cleared for the mobile home site, where one child stepped on a sharp wire last week. Many children walk through the empty lot as a shortcut.

Gil Ledesma of HOY said construction will last six to eight months, posing further hazards to children passing the property.

Other dangers stem from a "dilapidated" bridge used to cross a flood control channel and an unfenced path along the gully leading to the school, he added.

The bridge, scheduled to be removed during construction, has a loose and partially split center board. Although the dirt path leading to the school is posted with no trespassing signs, many children take the path as a shortcut.

Parents agreed to form a committee to ensure that children will be escorted to school, and Navarro said one man from HOY will accompany them.

Several mothers commented that the route to school offers hiding places for possible attack or molestation.

Loren Sanchez, assistant superintendent for instruction, said Foothill Knolls will adjust class schedules so children from Los Olivos will leave school at two different times instead of three.

Third-graders will be dismissed at 1:55 p.m., along with first- and second-graders, he said.

Upland Inn

Owner suing insurance firm

The owner of the landmark Upland Inn that burned down in 1976 has filed a lawsuit for $3.25 million in damages over alleged "bad faith" by his insurance carrier.

William Vallon contends in his suit that delays in paying policy claims caused financial hardship and precluded him from rebuilding the inn in its architectural style of the late 1800s.

He is seeking $3 million in punitive damages and another $250,000 in general damages from Great American Insurance Co.

The northeast corner of Ninth Street and First Avenue in Upland has sat vacant for two years and prospects appear dim any business locating there will resemble the inn first built in 1901.

Margo and Chuck Benson, listing agents for the property, said extensive efforts to find a suitable replacement with the same architectural style have failed.

Benson commented, "There probably will never be another Upland Inn."

Some type of offices "looks like the best present use" of the property, he said.

A fire in the early morning hours of April 1, 1976, destroyed much of the inn. The state fire marshal's office determined the fire was of an "incendiary nature," and fire officials confirm that the fire started from at least two "unrelated sets."

What remained relatively intact — the coffee shop, kitchen, banquet rooms and east end used for storage and freezing — was torn down that August at the city's insistence because of its potential hazard, Vallon said.

Bob Sullivan, Upland's chief building official, said the city attempts to give business owners time to settle their claims following fires but eventually the structures must be rebuilt or torn down and debris cleared.

Vallon's attorney — Harvey Levine of the William M. Shernoff branch office in San Diego — said the foundation of the suit charges Great American Insurance did not pay policy benefits when it should have.

Vallon said his loss was difficult to calculate in terms of actual dollars, but added that the amount was "considerably more" than the $200,000 estimated shortly after the fire.

Unsafe speed?

Police to clock trains

Following a resident's request, the Upland Police Department will soon be checking the speed of trains passing through the city.

The city council ordered the survey Monday night after receiving a letter from Frances L. Cummings on the need for speed limits for the trains.

City Attorney Donald Maroney noted the city already has an ordinance limiting the speed of trains to 20 mph in most of the city and 10 mph across Euclid Avenue.

He said the 20 mph limit may not be "as realistic as it might be."

Maroney said that while many cities adopt speed limits for trains, courts have held the state Public Utilities Commission generally has final authority.

Speed limits set too low "infringe on interstate commerce," according to the PUC, Maroney said.

However, the city attorney said the PUC does consider complaints on trains traveling too fast through cities, but he noted that the city would need specific information before filing.

The council requested the police department clock the trains with radar equipment before giving further consideration to Mrs. Cummings' letter.

Mrs. Cummings said she has noticed trains "racing" by her home on West Pearl Street at "very excessive speeds" in recent months.

High speeds and defects in the railroad tracks or wheels could lead to derailment endangering her family, Mrs. Cummings said.

City Manager Lee Travers said Upland has not received other complaints on trains' speed.

Prof. Liu Shih stands in the yard of his Upland home with one of his most famous sculptures of Confucius in the background. Liu is a renowned Chinese sculptor and artist. He has only been painting since moving to Upland in 1977. In Taiwan, he is considered the foremost painter of fish. His wife, Tung Chian Jen, is known for her brush paintings of flowers and birds.

Sculptures of Confucius mark front of artist's Upland home

The "master of fish painting" and a renowned Chinese sculptor is living on an Upland hillside.

His home, following the Chinese tradition, has the front door facing away from the mountains to assure good luck. And from that front entrance one can see in the front yard, two of Prof. Liu Shih's most famous sculptures, large bronze statues of Confucius, the philosopher and teacher of China.

Inside the home, the walls are graced with his fish brush paintings, and the flower and bird brush painting of his wife, Tung Chian Jen.

During a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Liu, their daughter-in-law, Amy Liu, acted as interpreter since the couple does not speak English.

Amy is the wife of Vincent Liu, one of three sons. The other sons are Peter and Steve. Their American names were chosen to replace their Chinese names, a common practice, Vincent, she said, was selected from the famous painter, Vincent Van Gogh. Peter was selected because it "is a nice name," and Steve, she said, was found in a dictionary and adopted because they have a "good American friend named Steve."

"Steve is in the university in Taiwan," Amy said, "and he doesn't know his name yet." Vincent is a computer specialist working in San Jose. Peter lives in Norwalk and attends a university.

The young Chinese girl met Vincent at the Taiwan university. They married and came to the University of Indiana to earn their master's degrees — Amy's in languages and Vincent's in computer technology. When Steve graduates, he will come to the United States, she said.

With their children settling in California, Mr. and Mrs. Liu decided to follow suit. They visited the Upland area, Amy said, and liked the mountains and the view from the home they purchased in 1977.

In the large, light studio room, Mr. and Mrs. Liu continue their painting, but the only sculpting Liu has done is a head of Rose Canter, a neighbor who has befriended the couple. Mrs. Canter is a specialist in ikebana, the art of Japanese flower arranging. The head is of concrete and when completed, will have a bronzed appearance.

The Confucius statues are from originals Liu made some years ago. The figure has been reproduced in many sizes, Amy said, and a small one was given to the City of Los Angeles. One of the large statues stands in New York's Chinatown, a gift from the artist.

Liu delights in showing guests the certificate of appreciation he received from the City of Los Angeles, signed by Mayor Tom Bradley, which hangs on a living room wall.

Liu was born in Wu-chin, Kiagsu Province of the Republic of China. He studied fine arts at the Shanghai Fine Arts College and held his first one-man exhibition when 18 years old, Amy said.

He studied painting and statuary arts at the Department of Fine Arts of Japan University and said, "My works for three times won the honors as being selected in Japanese National Fine Arts exhibitions."

A foot stompin enthusiastic kickoff last week launched the 1978-79 West End United Way's drive to raise $785,476 to support 35 member agencies.

Using a Western theme of "rounding up the bucks," more than 200 representatives of the agencies and volunteers ate box lunches and listened to the country-western music of the Piddleharmonic Foot Stompin' Strings.

The event took place under the trees on the grounds of the Air National Guard facility at Ontario International Airport with Cmdr. Lloyd Hutton as host.

Don Crawford, campaign chairman, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced cabinet members, who in turn introduced team members.

Crawford reported that 13 percent $100,139 of the goal had been raised by kickoff time.

Cabinet reports were made by Dick Verrue, Richard Gorow, Johnnie Stone, Merry Bocanegra, Charles Humann, Homer Briggs, Rosalie Kamansky, Charles Linck Jr. and Don Sperry.

During the reports, Ms. Bocanegra, representing Division D (small businesses), said during the week of Oct. 16 a "blitz" will be held. Over 2,200 letters have been sent to small businesses requesting pledges, and unanswered letters will be followed up by visits from service club members. Jim Bookhout is in charge of the "blitz" and has not announced which service clubs will be recruited.

Starting Tuesday, Oct. 3, report breakfasts will be held each Tuesday at the West End YMCA. Crawford will meet with cabinet members, but all interested volunteers are invited to attend.

Plans for the kickoff were made by the United Way's public relations committee headed by Maggie Stewart.

Experiment for West End courts gets approval

By PETER WONG
Staff Writer

Chief Justice Rose E. Bird has given her blessing to an experiment in West End courts that could save money and lead to a single trial court system statewide.

The experiment would give five of six Municipal Court judges in the West End temporary authority to hear most cases normally considered only in Superior Court.

It would affect the four - judge West Valley Municipal Court in Ontario and one - judge Municipal Courts in Chino and Rancho Cucamonga.

A similar experiment is being conducted in the six - judge El Cajon Municipal Court near San Diego.

The expanded authority allows a single judge to hear all proceedings in a case without the necessity of time - consuming transfers from Municipal to Superior court.

It also permits the district attorney's office and the public defender's office to resolve a greater number of cases short of the trial stage.

In a letter disclosed Tuesday by Supervisors' Chairman Robert O. Townsend of Chino, the chief justice said she would grant the expanded authority if the presiding judges of the county's Municipal and Superior courts agree to it.

The presiding judge of the Municipal Court system, Theo G. Krumm, has already endorsed the concept.

Krumm and Townsend requested the expanded authority in a letter to the chief justice Aug. 17.

In her reply, Bird said arrangements have been made before elsewhere in California for Municipal Court judges to assume duties of Superior Court judges "when the local courts have requested them."

She said this is done with the consent of presiding judges in both court systems.

Once their approval has been obtained, she said, "I would be happy to make such an assignment" in San Bernardino County.

The presiding judge of the Superior Court system, Joseph B. Campbell, has not taken a formal stand on the experiment.

In a memorandum he has circulated to other Superior Court judges, Campbell has indicated he wouldn't oppose the concept of expanded authority for Municipal Court judges. But he said he wasn't convinced that the experiment in El Cajon has saved money or time.

Townsend disclosed Bird's reply Tuesday while meeting with the 1978-79 county grand jury.

Members of the grand jury indicated they would be interested in looking at the reasons offered by Campbell if the Superior Court presiding judge withholds his consent for the experiment.

They also said they and future grand juries should watch the experiment to see if it cuts costs while improving the administration of justice.

Townsend's own reaction was, "Beautiful. Just like that."

Townsend is the chief author of a court reorganization plan he hopes will save county government at least $1 million annually.

The plan will also require the merger three Municipal Court districts in the West End, a goal the judges seek.

However, the county board of supervisors will probably continue to keep branch courts open in Chino (which will get two Municipal Court judges instead of one) and Rancho Cucamonga.

The judges have urged the closure of the Rancho Cucamonga Municipal Court and the transfer of its single judge to the West Valley Municipal Court in Ontario. But the supervisors have rejected that proposal twice.

The merger would allow the presiding judge of the West Valley Municipal Court to assign cases to branch courts. That cannot be done now with the present district lines.

During county budget sessions last month, the heads of county departments affected by Townsend's proposed court reorganization asked for more time to study its impact.

They are expected to meet soon to discuss their findings, and Townsend said Tuesday, "I believe most of their concerns have been resolved."

The experiment would start Jan. 1.

The state Legislature authorized the experiment with the El Cajon Municipal Court in 1977.

The experiment in El Cajon was not scheduled to begin until Jan. 1, 1979. But as chairman of the state Judicial Council, Chief Justice Bird granted the expanded authority a year early. The experiment will continue through 1983.

College ends workshop salaries; $1 million allegedly unauthorized

By PEGGY ZIEGLER
Staff Writer

Chaffey College recently discovered another fly in its financial ointment — payment of more than $1.1 million in apparently unauthorized salaries over the past seven years.

The payments went to employees of two sheltered workshops operating in Montclair and Fontana, according to Dr. James L. Catanzaro, superintendent-president of the college.

Sheltered workshops serve mentally retarded persons who require constant supervision in their work. The two involved in the Chaffey College investigation are Pomona Valley Sheltered Workshop and Fontana Rehabilitation Workshops.

Last year alone, the college paid an estimated 25 people almost $300,000, according to Catanzaro.

He noted his figures on the payments are just rough estimates at this time.

The situation came to light when Proposition 13 forced the college to review its budget for 1978-79.

The expenditures were questioned by the administration, and an investigation was begun.

Despite the fact that no record can be found of authorization from the college board of trustees, the program actually made money for Chaffey, Catanzaro said.

He said persons enrolled in the workshops were counted as students and thus the college gained money from the state for their average daily attendance (ADA).

Catanzaro estimated that about twice the amount paid out in salaries was returned to the college from ADA.

In spite of this, Catanzaro called the situation "pretty desperate" and "improper."

To correct the problem, the college suspended payment to the workshop employees on July 1 and Thursday night college trustees voted to no longer fund the programs.

The workshops involved in the dispute with the college, said as far as they knew, they did nothing improper and were entirely within the guidelines and had the blessings of the college.

Workshop representatives have threatened to bring legal action against the college if no money is given to the workshops this year.

Adding to the college's budget difficulties, the state budget act following Proposition 13, stipulated that handicapped programs at community colleges be funded at 85 percent of the level funded during 1977-78.

To unravel the financial problems, Catanzaro submitted a waiver request to the chancellor of the community colleges asking that the college be allowed to cut back its funding level to about 70 percent.

Lowering the level would save the college about $133,000, Catanzaro said.

The board of trustees at its Sept. 7 meeting decided not to ask for the waiver but also said that it would not fund the workshops. That finding was reaffirmed at Thursday's board meeting.

Catanzaro said the programs at the workshops began about seven years ago. He added he believes the initial move to fund the workshops was done in "good faith."

But, sometime during the last seven years, persons supervising the workshops had been classified as instructors and began receiving salaries from the college, Catanzaro said.

In addition, the program and the salaries were never authorized by the board of trustees, he noted.

Representatives of the workshops, however, said it was their understanding the board of trustees did have knowledge of the programs and authorized them.

The funding began in 1972 as a program of the community services department and was, at that time, within the scope of that department's operations, Catanzaro said. He pointed out community service programs do not generate ADA money for the college.

Board okays centers

The board of supervisors agreed last week to the creation of day care centers for senior citizens in San Bernardino County.

But the supervisors made it clear the county government won't take the initiative in setting up such centers and won't spend local property taxes to operate any of them.

The centers are intended to keep senior citizens in their own homes and out of nursing homes and other institutions if 24-hour care isn't required. The centers would provide a variety of health and social services to seniors.

Without debate, the supervisors accepted a recommendation from an advisory council that senior day care centers be set up in San Bernardino County by mid-1979.

They were told that Loma Linda University, the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Loma Linda and Barstow Community Hospital were willing to establish such centers.

The costs would be paid for through fees for services and state Medi-Cal payments. That would allow the centers to operate without support from property taxes.

In its report to the supervisors, the advisory council said senior day care centers should not be confused with seniors' centers in general.

"They are not senior centers and are not meant to serve the same population. While the (day care) center may be located in a senior center, it should be operated separately," the report says.

The day care center would serve up to 30 seniors.

An estimated 100,000 residents of San Bernardino County — almost one of every seven people — are 60 or older. Although not all of them would qualify for the health and social services offered through these centers, thousands of them would.

Panel puts Foothill Freeway discussion on shelf until 1979

By PETER WONG
Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — State officials said Friday the California Transportation Commission won't consider the Foothill Freeway issue at all this year.

The commission's executive secretary, Michael P. Evanhoe, said the nine-member panel probably won't discuss the Foothill Freeway or other disputed routes until sometime next year.

Evanhoe said he and the 11-member commission staff will have to spend most of their time drafting a comprehensive report on transportation that will be required every two years. The report must be submitted to the Legislature by Dec. 31.

Evanhoe, who was appointed the commission's top staff officer Sept. 5, said he didn't know when the commission might consider the Foothill Freeway next year.

He said only that it would be taken up at a commission meeting in Los Angeles or elsewhere in Southern California "so we don't require citizens to move about the state."

Under the present rotation, the commission's first Los Angeles meeting in 1979 is scheduled for March.

The proposed extension of the Foothill Freeway (California Highway 30) would run 28.3 miles from La Verne through Claremont, Upland and Rancho Cucamonga to the Devore Freeway and San Bernardino.

Earlier this year, the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) recommended a full-scale review of the freeway route. That action could lead to the route's removal from the state freeway system. Or it could result in the commission's reconfirmation of the route.

The commission has not yet acted on the department's recommendation for a review, which in department jargon is termed "recycling."

The commission heard a report from C. E. Forbes, Caltrans' chief engineer, on a number of routes recommended for review and possible deletion from the state freeway system.

Forbes said any route not part of Caltrans' 20-year highway plan is being considered for deletion.

Food, milk programs announced

Central and Cucamonga school districts announced recently the policy for free and reduced price meals and free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast and Special Milk Programs.

Children from families whose income is at or below certain levels are eligible for free or reduced price meals. In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for the benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, the family should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy the principals will review applications and determine eligibility. If parents are dissatisfied with the ruling, they may discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If they wish to make a formal appeal, they may make a request either orally or in writing to Dr. Norman C. Guith, 9457 Foothill Blvd., Rancho Cucamonga, Ca. 91730, telephone 987-2612 for Central School District, or Julian Lopez, 8776 Archibald Ave., Rancho Cucamonga, Ca. 91730, telephone 987-8941, for Cucamonga School District, for a hearing to appeal the decision.

If a family member becomes unemployed, or if a family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible.

Citrus LL

A meeting of Citrus Little League Board of Directors will be held Thursday, Oct. 5, at 7:30 in the CSA-50 building on Base Line Road.

Field leaders (managers and coaches), safety officer and an umpire-in-chief are needed.

An opportunity for parents to have an input into the operation is being offered.

Volunteer assistance in completing the Senior Division field has been noted.

Calico Gunfighters shoot and tumble in the line of duty during the third annual gunfight championship 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7 at the annual Calico Ghost Town Days. Weekend festivities include country and bluegrass music, a parade, family contests and games, and the annual burro run. Camping facilities are available on a first-come basis at the regional park 10 miles north of Barstow.

Music, gunfights, burro race Calico Days festival set

The 11th annual Calico Days celebration gets underway Oct. 6, 7, and 8 at Calico Ghost Town.

This year's celebration will once again be highlighted by a horse parade, a burro run, the second annual gunfight stunt championship, and the country, gospel, and bluegrass music.

It all starts Friday, Oct. 6 at 4 p.m. with gospel selections from the Californians, followed by a country dance at 7 p.m. On Saturday, visitors can enter any of the 30 odd events ranging from stilt racing to greased pole climbing. At 11:30 a.m. the Calico Days Parade will march up Main Street. Comprised of equestrians and horse drawn vehicles, this mile-long procession will officially christen Calico Days 1978.

After the parade, the afternoon will open with a roar of gunfire when the second annual Gunfighter Stunt Championship takes place. Groups from throughout California will be performing original gunfight skits, vying for first place honors in front of thousands of people. Last year's winners, the Vigilantes, who upstaged eight of the top gunfighter groups in California, are expected to receive some serious challenges from this year's groups. Sponsored by the Calico Gunfighters Association and Superior Industries, the competition starts at 3 p.m. in the Silver Bowl.

Saturday's evening concert will feature Mr. and Mrs. Country Music, Joe and Rose Lee Maphis. Also on tap for Saturday evening will be bluegrass entertainment by the Gloryland String Band and the Little Mountain Bluegrass Boys from San Bernardino.

On Sunday burro run races through the streets of Calico. Ten hardy individuals will endure the madcap Calico obstacle course while pulling a burro behind them. It's all for glory and $100 in prize money.

Intermixed among the events and contests will be fashion shows, impromptu stunt performances, ragtime and music and just plain old-fashioned family fun.

Calico Ghost Town, a San Bernardino County Regional Park, is located 10 miles north of Barstow via Interstate 15 to Ghost Town Road. Camping facilities are available on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information concerning Calico Days, contact Regional Parks, 157 W. Fifth St., San Bernardino, CA 92415, phone 383-1912.

You and Your Pet

Urinary blockage serious for cats

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.
Manager of Veterinary Services

Norden Laboratories
Most cat owners are very pleased to see their pets regularly using the litter box. But those with male cats should know that too many visits can be a sign of a serious urinary tract obstruction.

The problem begins when various factors — not all identified — cause minerals in the diet to form sand-like particles or stones in the cat's bladder. In female cats, the particles easily pass through the urethra (the outlet from the bladder) and are eliminated with the urine.

In males, where the bladder outlet is more narrow, the mineral deposits are often-trapped. Sometimes enough particles will collect to completely block the urethra and stop the passage of urine.

The signs of discomfort are fairly typical and an alert owner should suspect the nature of the problem. At first the cat will make frequent trips to the litterbox or outside in response to bladder pressure. Urination may still be possible, but the frequent trips are a clue that trouble is brewing.

As the condition progresses, the cat will become more uncomfortable and strain to urinate for several minutes at a time. Little or no urine will pass and the owner may interpret the problem as constipation.

Unfortunately laxatives offer no help, and only waste valuable treatment time. As the pressure increases, the cat becomes very restless and may cry. Complete urinary blockage is an emergency situation. Unless the blockage is removed, the animal will die of uremic poisoning as toxic wastes normally excreted in the urine accumulate in the bloodstream.

At this point, professional assistance is desperately needed. Your veterinarian will anesthetize the cat, drain the bladder, and remove the obstruction.

In addition to treating the condition, your veterinarian will discuss with you steps to help prevent future urethral blockage. They include:

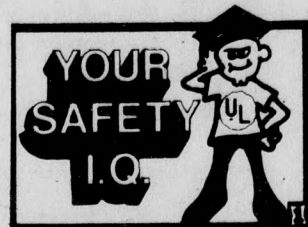

— Increasing your cat's water intake so that minerals are flushed from the bladder before stones form. If your cat refuses to drink extra water, the addition of one-fourth teaspoon of salt to its food each day will increase water intake noticeably. Of course a bowl of fresh water should always be available.

— Revising your cat's diet. Foods with a high ash or magnesium content (those containing whole fish or ground bone) seem to aggravate the condition. Moist canned food should be fed in preference to dry food, which contains only about 10 percent water or semi-moist food (25 percent water).

Very little is known about the exact cause of urinary blockage. High levels of minerals in the diet, previous urinary tract infections and a newly discovered virus seen in the bladder of afflicted cats may all contribute to the problem.

If your pet's condition does not respond to dietary or drug treatment, surgical correction of the urethra may be required.

Water essential in dieting

By PAT PLUMLEIGH
(Plumleigh is area supervisor for The Diet Workshop.)

What's ... non-caloric, inexpensive, readily available and absolutely essential to every diet?

Good old water. Call it H<sub>2</sub>O, aqua pura, or branch — it is totally overlooked and neglected as the friend of dieters.

Think about it. You can steep coffee in water and fill your stomach with coffee in the morning. You can submerge a tea bag in it for a mid-day pickup. At lunch time, immerse a bouillon cube within a saucepan of water, dice in some celery, some green pepper, some zucchini, some french style green beans — and voila! custom-made soup.

Not only that, you can pour water into ice cube trays, put them within the freezer and in mid-afternoon clink the cubes into a glass to cool off the remnants of the morning's coffee.

As though versatility were not enough, water serves many diet functions as well. It fills many a void — one new diet book, in fact, encourages dieters to take a glass of water at the onset of hunger pangs or 20 minutes before meals. And that's not a bad idea at all.

Many dieters complain that going on a fat-restricted eating program (which most diets are) leads to constipation. That is one diet problem that could be so easily eliminated by relying on water.

Keeping the contents of the digestive system well-hydrated is half the battle. So turn on the faucet rather than open the laxative bottle.

Through history, water has shaped events. Wars erupted over water rights. Ships traveled and commerce developed because cities were built where fresh water streams and salt water seas met. Broad rivers kept people apart and resulted in political boundaries and language differences.

And water can shape your personal history, too, if you're on a diet. How's your daily water level? At least six glasses? If it is, you're on target.

As for that old bugaboo, water retention, blame the retention — not the water. The way to handle retention is to cut down on salt, diet sodas (substitute water!), pickles, and hard cheeses. Do not forego the water.

Threat of shortages, job cuts

Energy policy needs revision

California's existing electrical energy policy must be changed if the state is to avoid serious disruption of electrical service, significant increases in electricity costs, severe job losses and major adverse economic impacts, according to two major studies of the state's electrical energy needs released by the California Council for Environmental and Economic Balance (CCEEB).

The studies were highly critical of the California Energy Commission's performance and recommended major organizational changes to better meet California's electrical energy demands between now and 1995.

As a result of the findings of the two studies, CCEEB has recommended that the Energy Commission be abolished, its power plant siting function transferred to the California Public Utilities Commission, and a new state Department of Energy — accountable directly to the governor — be created.

In addition, CCEEB called for enactment of legislation to facilitate the siting of coal-fired power plants and creation of an administrative mechanism to cut through red tape and eliminate interagency conflicts in the siting of power plants.

CCEEB is a statewide non-profit organization composed of organized labor, business, industry and public interest representatives which works to develop broad support for improving the environment while maintaining healthy economic growth.

Specifically, the studies conclude California faces annual earnings losses of $4.7 billion and job losses of 170,000 annually by 1995 if existing state energy policy banning new nuclear power plants, coupled with the present strong constraints on building coal power plants, is continued.

Additionally, the studies indicated that future federal limitations — or an outright federal ban on the construction of new oil-fired facilities — in addition to the ban on siting nuclear plants and severe constraints on construction of coal power plants would produce electrical shortages and up to 342,000 job losses by 1995.

In such an electrical shortage situation, the studies note, random outages could be expected to occur as frequently as 183 days a year, unless electricity is rationed.

Generally, the two studies conclude that if the state fails to develop and implement a coherent energy policy designed to meet future electric power demands, insufficient or unnecessarily expensive electrical generating facilities will be built in the future.

The reports further conclude that the state's present policy and lack of action in siting new power plants could result in insufficient future electrical energy supplies causing:

- Significant increases in the price of electricity supplies causing:

- Significant increases in the price of electricity ranging from 1.8 to 11 percent by 1995.

- Inadequate electrical energy supplies resulting in rationing, ranging from 5 to 18 percent by 1995. In the absence of rationing, random outages could be expected in the worst situation to occur as frequently as 183 days a year.

- The cost of electricity to consumers to increase substantially by $2 to $12 billion from 1977 to 1995, while earnings and employment would be reduced. Annual earnings losses would range from $538 million to $4.7 billion and annual employment losses would range from 20,000 to 170,000 jobs per year by 1995.

- Electricity shortages imposing substantial costs upon consumers and producers in California ranging from $30 million to $3.2 billion per year by 1995. Such shortages would increase earnings and employment losses considerably beyond those cited above. Employment losses caused by shortages range from 44,000 to 342,000 by 1995.

To avoid these consequences, CCEEB President Michael R. Peevey said, major changes must be made in state energy policy. "Interagency bickering and jurisdictional disputes must be dampened and the substantive issues involved in locating power plants must receive more attention."

According to Peevey, the California Research study concludes that there is "no coherent state electrical energy policy" and that the California Energy Commission has performed poorly in most regards.

Noting that no new power plant has been sited and constructed in California in nearly four years, CCEEB chairman Katherine Dunlap said the Energy Commission's power plant siting process is "cumbersome, conflicting, uncoordinated and duplicative."

"Major reorganization is needed," she said.

Based on the findings of the two studies, Peevey said, CCEEB is recommending elimination of the Energy Commission with its functions and responsibilities divided between the California Public Utilities Commission (PUC) and a newly created state Department of Energy.

"An essential premise of this recommendation is that it is no longer practical to separate utility financing and rate-making from power plant siting," Peevey noted.

With the transfer of the power plant siting function of the Energy Commission to the Public Utilities Commission, most regulatory decisions related to electrical energy would be consolidated within one agency, the PUC, that has modernized its capacity and has a well-tested system for providing conclusive answers to matters within its jurisdiction, he said.

The CCEEB proposal would separate regulation and decision-making from policy formulation and recommendation, Peevey noted. "If an expedited power plant siting process is to be achieved, such a separation is essential," he said.

The new Department of Energy would be headed by a director, appointed by the governor, who would serve as the policy initiator and representative for the administration on all electrical energy matters.

According to Peevey, the new Department of Energy could have major responsibilities in the following areas:

- Development of a state energy plan.
- Development of energy conservation.

- Research, development and testing of alternative electrical energy systems.

- Development of energy forecasting methodologies.

- Development of

criteria for power plant siting.

— Authority to intervene in PUC proceedings.

In addition, the new Department of Energy would develop a preferential electric energy fuel supply strategy. In developing the strategy, the social, economic and environmental impacts of the various fuels would be considered.

The California Research study was critical of present state energy policy in several specific areas:

— Three and one-half years after its inception, the Energy Commission is still embroiled in fundamental policy and procedural debates and "policy largely has had to be inferred from non-action, delayed action or negative action."

— The Energy Commission "seriously lacks credibility in the Legislature, with those it regulates, and with many interests who participate or regularly monitor its proceedings."

— Basic conflicts continue to exist between the Energy Commission, the California Air Resources Board and the federal Environmental Protection Agency over air quality regulations as applied to power plants; and the Energy Commission, the state Water Resources Control Board and the California Coastal Commission over cooling water discharged from power plants.

— Unresolved conflicts continue between the Energy Commission and the Public Utilities Commission.

Dunlap added: "The time for organizational experimentation is over. A workable mechanism must be established soon or California will have inadequate electrical energy in the future. As the NERA study makes clear, such an outcome would be extremely undesirable.

"Everyone would suffer:

California consumers, workers, businessmen, as would the general economy. All would pay more for less reliable electricity, would earn less, and would be threatened with or actually experience unemployment and workweek cutbacks.

"The time for drift and indecision is past. California can have a quality environment, a healthy economy, and full employment with productive jobs at good wages. But achieving these broadly-held goals requires changing the way California plans and develops its electrical energy future. The time for basic reform is at hand," Dunlap said.

Manufactured near Upland

Decorator phones big business

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Until the 1960s, American telephones seemed to be built with advice from Henry Ford, who once told his Model T customers they could buy any color so long as it was black.

Times have changed and telephone companies now offer a variety of colors and styles. Many of the decorator phones are manufactured at American Telecommunications Corp., 2066 W. 11th St., in county territory just outside Upland city limits.

Tom Eisenstadt, the firm's director for telephone products, said telephone customers who wanted more than the standard black model used to buy "bootleg" phones from abroad.

He added that the imported phones did not always work well when tied into American phone systems.

A joint ruling by U.S. phone companies in 1965 allowed other firms to make phones to the manufacturers' specifications, clearing the field for decorator phones, Eisenstadt said.

American Telecommunications has been making decorator phones at its site near Upland since 1969.

Although the Walt Disney character is one of the firm's biggest selling phones, the firm is no Mickey Mouse operation.

Eisenstadt said American Telecommunications produces more than 300,000 decorator phones annually. Mike Deuel, director of operations, added that the company employs 350 workers at the 11th Street site, where American Telecommunications also makes other phone products.

In addition to Mickey Mouse, the firm will soon introduce a model with Snoopy holding the receiver while his bird companion Woodstock is perched on the base.

The company also makes old-fashioned Candlestick phones that have the receiver as a part separate from the mouthpiece. Emphasis phones are decorated with floral designs.

Eisenstadt said that over the years the firm's most popular style has been the antique gold Cradlephone. Cradlephones have the mouthpiece and receiver bent in an "L" shape for a continental look.

The firm's Chestphones are hidden in wood-like boxes, resembling humidors, when not in use.

Eisenstadt compared the phones to furniture, particularly decorator lamps that "don't do the job any better, but prettier."

Ron Reynolds, Life Scout, Troop 614, received the God and Country Award at worship services of the United Methodist Church of Upland last week. The award is a religious emblem granted for religious knowledge and service in each faith.

Births

PIMENTEL—A son, Ronnie, born Sept. 3 to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pimentel, 6781 Etiwanda Ave., Etiwanda. — A daughter, Kimberley Michelle, born Sept. 4 to Mr. and Mrs. Michael V. Shaw, 8439 18th St., Alta Loma. — A son, Timothy Gabriel, born Sept. 5 to Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert L. Landin, 173 N. 13th Ave., Upland. — A son, Isom Harvey, born Sept. 9 to Mr. and Mrs. Isom H. Manning, 6851 Opal, Alta Loma. — A daughter, Mary Anna, born Sept. 11 to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Barmakian, 6027 Carmo St., Alta Loma. — A son, Jeremiah Benjamin, born Sept. 11 to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce E. Johnson, 9347 La Vine, Alta Loma. — A daughter, Kelly Nicole, born Sept. 11 to Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Fox, 9407 Hillside, Alta Loma. — A son, Jeffrey Paul, born Sept. 12 to Mr. and Mrs. King T. Dalton, 1536 Carnation Way, Upland.

He said the firm watches changes in furniture designs and other trends. Recent emphasis on nostalgia spurred sales of the Candlestick models, he noted.

However, Eisenstadt explained that the firm is looking for lasting styles, "not gimmicks." Mickey Mouse and Snoopy are the only comic strip characters so far to become part of the American Telecommunications line.

Eisenstadt said the company spends about a year from the initial concept, research and development before a new model goes on the market.

Despite the precautions, some models flop. Eisenstadt recalled the firm tried a cheaper version of its Chestphone, which turned out to be a "real stiff."

Prices range from $80 to $125 for decorator phones. The firm sells to the Bell Telephone System and independent telephone companies nationwide.

Eisenstadt noted the phone companies either lease the entire phone, sell the decorative shell and lease the inner workings or sell the entire phone outright to their customers.

He added that General Telephone of California is now selling the entire phone. At the 11th Street site, American Telecommunications makes the molds for shaping the telephones, melts plastic pellets and injects the plastic into the molds under pressure ranging from 75 to 650 tons, Deuel said.

He added that parts are later painted and assembled on a conveyor belt.

Eisenstadt noted the firm also makes automatic answering phones, memory-dialing phones and equipment for phone companies' central offices at the site. Eisenstadt, who works out of corporate headquarters in El Monte, said he foresees a continuing market for decorator phones. Customers invest in the phones like furniture or use the phones as conversation pieces, he added. He said that at $115-$125 a phone, people are not buying Mickey Mouse for children. "There are a lot of closet Mickey Mouse fans. They say they are buying it for their grandchildren, but actually it ends up in their own homes." Eisenstadt keeps his Mickey Mouse phone in his living room, and pointed out that the room is not "decorated in early comic strip."

Loma Linda University plans dental clinic for south Mexico

The Loma Linda University School of Dentistry has completed preliminary negotiations with the minister of health for the state of Chiapas, Mexico, to open a permanent dental clinic in southern Mexico, according to Dr. Judson Klooster, dean of the school.

The School of Dentistry is not new to the people of Chiapas, said Dr. Harry Ridgley, chairman of the department of preventive and community dentistry. "We have been providing dental services to southern Mexico and other countries in Central America for a few weeks each summer since the late 1950s.

"We are very much aware of our limitations in not being able to provide a continuing service to these people," he said, "and have been anxious to assure a better continuity of patient care in this area. However, limited financial resources have previously prevented this development."

For the past 20 years, School of Dentistry students and faculty have taken two to three weeks of their summer vacation to provide dental care to individuals who are located in remote jungle areas where no dental services are available.

The trips to Mexico are only part of the international outreach programs of the Seventh-day Adventist - sponsored school. In addition to providing clinical services in Chiapas, the school has sponsored clinics in Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Haiti, Trinidad, and Guam.

The university leases property from the Colegio Linda Vista, a Seventh-day Adventist secondary school, near the town of Pueblo Nuevo, 80 miles from Tuxtla, Guiterrez, the capital city of the state of Chiapas.

Originally, the land was used by Loma Linda University's department of biology for a field station. Two small homes and a large building are located on the property. The department of biology has authorized the university to transfer these facilities to the School of Dentistry for permanent, full-time use.

The larger building will be used as the clinic site, according to Ridgley.

Current plans call for a three-chair clinic. "It will be necessary for us to do some renovative work on the buildings in order to install proper electrical outlets, water lines, and other items necessary for a dental clinic."

In previous years, the purpose of the dental trips was primarily to relieve the immediate pain of the patients. However, in the past two years, the dental teams have been able to do restorative work with portable equipment developed by Dr. Robert James, associate professor of restorative dentistry.

Now with a permanent site, the school will be able to sponsor a faculty member and students. Long-range plans call for staffing the clinic 6-9 months in each year.

"Financial assistance for this project has been provided by the local area Rotary clubs," Ridgley said. "For each dollar that they give to the project, Rotary International matches the donation."

So far, approximately $8,000 has been received from Rotary Club sources. These funds will help to provide equipment for the clinic and transportation for students and faculty to the clinic site.

Sunday school convention set

"The Harvest Is Yours" is the theme of the 1978 annual convention of Glendale-based Greater Los Angeles Sunday School Association Sept. 28-30 in Pasadena Convention Center, 300 E. Green St. Pasadena Hilton Hotel facilities will also be used for meals and various activities, says Stanley Long, Upland resident and owner of several religious bookstores, including one in Ontario. He is conclave chairman.

The convention, expected to attract more than 10,000 registrants from Southland churches, is designed to "meet the need of the total church program" advised Long. Dr. Cyrus Nelson is founder - president of 26-year-old GLASS.

Rev. Robert Neil, Pasadena Free Methodist Church, named 1979 convention chairman, heads the communications committee this year. He is among more than 40 GLASS board members to participate in the convention.

The program offers a roster of top Sunday School personnel, Long said, with more than 200 workshops.

150 exhibits, mealtime meetings and a ministry of music Saturday with an elaborate concert presentation that night.

Principal speakers include Dr. Joe Bayley, vice president of a national religious publishing house, author and lecturer; Charles Jones, executor, consultant and seminar leader; and Dr. Jack MacArthur, pastor of Panorama City Grace Community Church. Also Mrs. Ethel Barrett, Bible story-telling personality and author, and Miss Joni Earickson, a successful artist who is paralyzed from a diving accident, will give a testimony for God.

THE HOT DOG VENDOR

There was a n. n who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs.
He sold very good hot dogs.
He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were.
He stood on the side of the road and cried:
"Buy a hot dog, Mister?"
And people bought.
He increased his meat and bun orders.
He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.
He finally got his son home from college to help him out.
But then something happened.
His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression.
The foreign situation is terrible.
The domestic situation is worse."
Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know."
So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs.
And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.
"You're right, son" the father said to the boy.
"We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."
